

Barwon
Health

ABORIGINAL HEALTH UNIT

Aboriginal Workforce Officer

Get to know our team and learn how the Aboriginal Health Unit can support you.

ABORIGINAL WORKFORCE OFFICER

Barwon
Health

The Aboriginal Workforce Officer (AWO) provides support to Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander applicants and employees, understanding that a strong indigenous workforce will help Barwon Health provide better quality health outcomes to the community.

The AWO can provide cultural support to managers who have Aboriginal or Torres Strait Islander employees within their departments.

AWO Bec Quinn is a Gunai Kurnai woman living on Wadawurrung land.

Bec can be located within the Aboriginal Health Unit on Level 2, Birdsey Wing, University Hospital (Monday to Friday, 8.30am - 4.30pm).

Contact Bec:

Phone: 4215 0532

Email: robecca.quinn@barwonhealth.org.au

THE ABORIGINAL WORKFORCE OFFICER CAN HELP WITH:

- Assisting job seekers to submit applications for positions available
- Sitting on interview panels to ensure a culturally safe environment for applicants
- Formally welcoming employees upon commencement at Barwon Health, providing knowledge on the Aboriginal Health Unit
- Promoting Barwon Health as an employer of choice within Greater Geelong
- Working closely with education providers to ensure direct career pathways to Barwon Health
- Mentoring employees
- Supporting managers
- Working collaboratively on the Aboriginal Employment Plan
- Coordinating cultural events for employees.

www.barwonhealth.org.au/aboriginalhealth/